Within the framework, HRG provides a comprehensive one-stop solution from specialist service centres covering air, rail, hotel, meetings and events requirements. The classic HRG telephone-based service operates alongside HRG Online™, an integrated self-booking tool, to focus on obtaining better value for all corporate travel in terms of cost, quality and service delivery.

In addition to HRG Online™, other technology products being demonstrated include: HRG Travel Watch™ which allows organisations to track their employees around the world at all times, highlighting potential risk areas for example and closely monitoring traveller security, and HRG Reporting™ which generates customised reports in either a standardised or totally bespoke format, providing the information travel managers need to streamline cost, support budget planning decisions and achieve travel policy compliance.

Terry Grainger, Director of Government Contracts at HRG, said: "Our bespoke technology can help public sector organisations to manage their travel arrangements more efficiently. It helps to deliver cost savings by creating greater synergies in their travel bookings."
